STRICTLY BUSINESS!

THAT those who are so kind as to give me their patronage may understand just how I propose to conduct my business I write this eard to explain. I have no objection to placing any number of people on my books on the weekly or monthly system of settlement, but under no circumstances will I ran any customer longer than the time agreed upon to settle, viz, weekly or monthly. The margin on my business is too close to admit of any loose manner of dealing with any one. My motto is to give every patron just what they want, or as near to it as possible and I request that those who patronize me call for what they want, and if I can't give it to them will give the next best thing to it at prices accordingly; and if neither the price nor quality suit, it can be returned at my expense and nothing more will be said or thought of it.

It has been the custom of all markets heretofore to give Hotels and Boarding Houses their choice meats at reduced prices, and letting the general run of customers, have just such meats as they could get. I have made a change, so far as my Market is concerned. I will charge all alike My best cuts of mate are strictly 10; per pound to anybody, and other than choice will be sold as cheap as live and to five will parmit I am making no fight on Hotels or Boarding Honses, for it is their privilege to bay as cheap as they can and I don't blame them to do so.

I have placed a Money Weight Scale in my Market that gives the exact money value of the different priced meats, and if I cut off a Steak or Roast that is worth 9: I charge that for it; if it is worth 11c, I charge 11c, for it, &c. So if you notice 2: charged on your bill you have got 9: worth; if you find 11c, charged you have gotten 11c, worth. I neither give an odd cent or take it. Make the price right on the Money Weight Scale to begin, and charge just exactly what the indicator shows.

Believing that my friends and patrons have known me long enough to know that I have no desire to do other than an honorable business, and that in so doing t wil
